NCMSS Club Meeting January 26, Edison High

Jim Richey

All purchased at our September Show, the “demi-ronde” flats were from the Artist Preservation Group (APG), both Civil war subjects. The Turtle is one of the first submarines that tried to sink a British vessel in Boston Harbor in 1775. Sadly, it failed but was an ingenious contraption and makes for a great model in 1/35 scale. Most of the parts were very brittle and Jim replaced quite a few, including bending and soldering all the wiring etc. himself. He also had to make the cutaway to show the inside. The WWI Trench Raider bust was from the Model Cellar. All done in acrylics.

Greg Paspatis

Greg brought in some Britains ACW Confederate Soldiers he had recently purchased to commemorate Lee's birthday the week before. Many in the club remember that Toy Soldiers used to be a category in past shows.

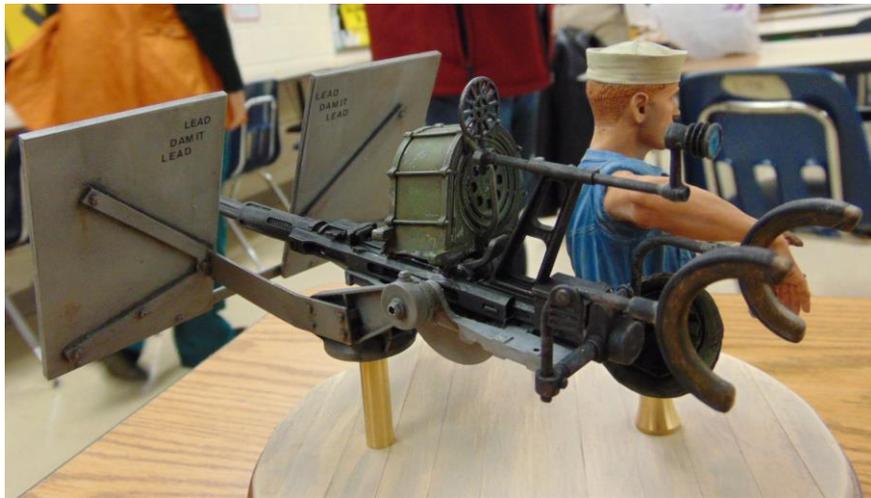

Jenny Young

Jenny brought in a horse hoof she had bought at the Horse supply store she works at to show and describe the anatomy of the real thing.

Robert Prokop

1/10 scale, WW II, USN 20MM GUNNER, on the USS Enterprise by Abteilung 502. Previously seen at an earlier zoom meeting, it was great to see it in person. Bob had taken this to the Long Island show where it was a great hit.

The first is from “Bestiarum Miniatures” and is a nasty looking beast, with oozing postules and all. Fun if gross to paint. The “Billman” flat is both Zach’s first flat and first attempt at Non-Metallic Metal (NMM). Working incollaboration with Belgian member Michel Brasseur, this has been a worthy effort over the last three months and was voted “Mug of the Month”.

Zachariah Becker

Michael Dutcher

Work in progress from Mike. From 3D Sculpting, Mike thought this a pleasant respite from some of his commission projects.

Luis Fernando Andres

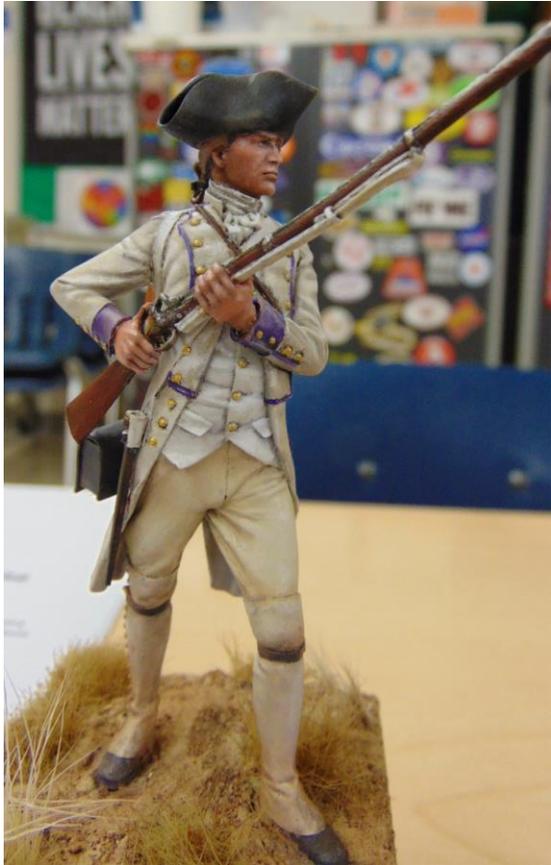

Our newest member who is from Spain and assigned to D.C. for work, decided to concentrate on smaller subjects (28mm in this case) due to his moving around. After seeing the movie "Warhorse", he thought it would be intriguing to do WWI Cavalry, as the war saw the last large cavalry actions and the transition to the more drab variety as seen with the British and Germans. The Brits are from the famous Scots Greys. All done in acrylics, Vallejo of course!

David Hoffman

Scale 75 Agenois Regiment, 1779, American War of Independence. This figure was produced for the Artist Preservation Group. A very nice 75mm figure which is a copy of an original 54mm by Bill Horan. Painted mostly in oils. Some are still available on the APG website.

Very nice casting and great subject! Nuts Planet, 75mm. "Comrade in Arms", French infantry, Canada 1760. very frag finely cast parts though.

NCMSS Virtual Club Meeting February 5

Michael Thomas

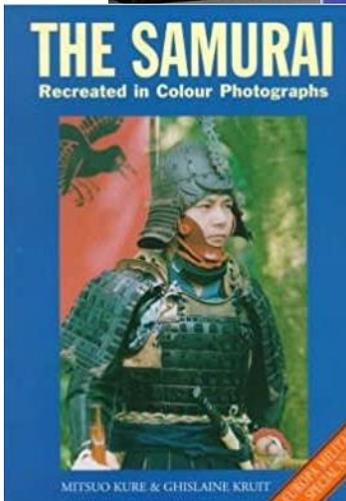

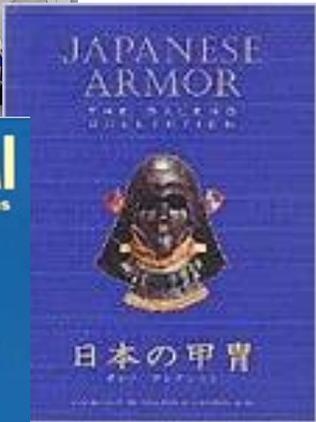

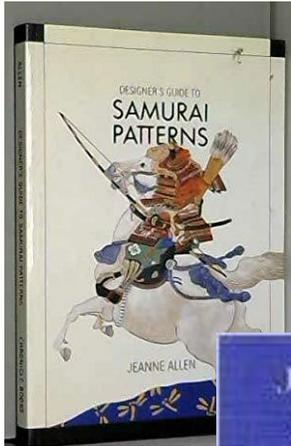

Mike Just finished these two from El Greco and are both 3D figures. "They depict legionaries from two different legions, (on the left), Legio XXX Ulpia Pia Fidelis and a signifer of legio IV Flavia Felix. They date from the mid 3rd century AD. These legions formed a part of the army under Maximinus Thrax, a short-lived emperor (just 3 years). He took his army into Germany as far as the Elbe and then marched all the way back again having achieved absolutely nothing! His troops took a poor view of this and bumped him off. The last battle was fought between the Romans and the Germanic tribes at the Harzhorn region, probably in 236 A.D."

David Hoffman

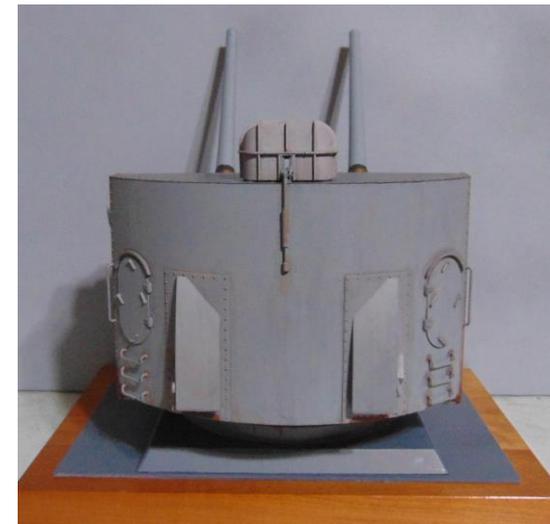

Ronin, 16th Century, 90mm Pegaso Miniatures. Painted in Acrylics and oils. This is one of the most recent Pegaso releases, cast in metal they went out of stock shortly after I purchased it, likely due to supply problems. Quite a challenging piece to paint, like most Samurai figures.

Jim Richey

Takom's MK38 5"/38 twin gun mount. 1/35 scale.

This is the type of gun mount that was on the destroyer that Jim served on back in the early 70's.

Michael Pierce

“These are all Airfix Figures. First photo is Coldstream Guards 1815. Second and Third Photos are British, American Revolution. All have been converted. I paid on average $5.00 each for the figures”

Jack Thompson

Dutch "Red Lancer" 1810 Diorama, from our September Show, Silver Medal.

Jack Thompson

Glenn Mon

“WIP on the vignette I'm working on. It is of Cpl. Brownell and includes an actual colorized photo of him along with the modifications to an FeR figure to represent him. Sculpting is completed and painting has begun.”

Rick Sanders

Photo of six Teutonic Order and allied armies' banners from the same battle. 30mm flats by the former Golberg International firm.

Two photos of Polish-Lithuanian army banners from the 1410 Battle of Tannenberg/Grunwald. 30mm flats by Hans Stoll of Ueberlingen.

Rick Sanders

Three photos of 1700-1720 Russian cavalry from Peter the Great's army:

Horse grenadiers in blue coats and grenadier caps;
Ingermanlandski Dragoon Regiment with blue coats;
and Yaroslavsky Dragoon Regiment with green coats.
30 mm flats by Alexander Wilken.

Bernard Kempinski

A “Dungeons and Dragons Style vignette.

Peter Espada

Tamiya's most recent armor kit, Panzerkampfwagen IV G early production, Afrika Korps 1942-3. "Very easy to assemble, I built it out-of-box, stowage and figures included, just adding headphone cables and uniform insignia."

Burt Thompson

Burt had these gems on the right at the Long Island Show. Bob Petrillo was also there with entries (below) along with Bob Prokop.

FORM

Zacharia Becker

Zach took these recent figures to the Long Island Show.

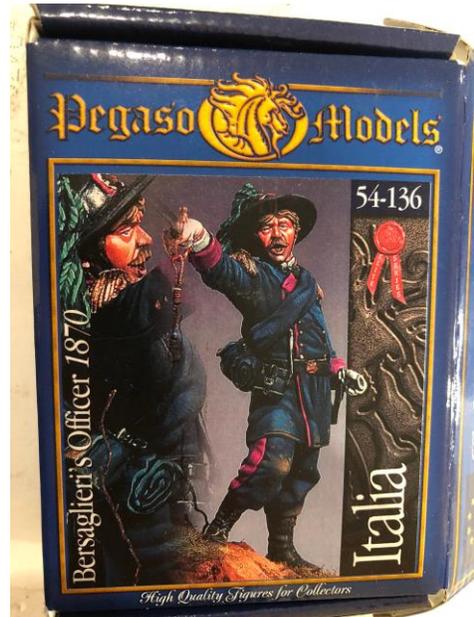

Gerard Joria

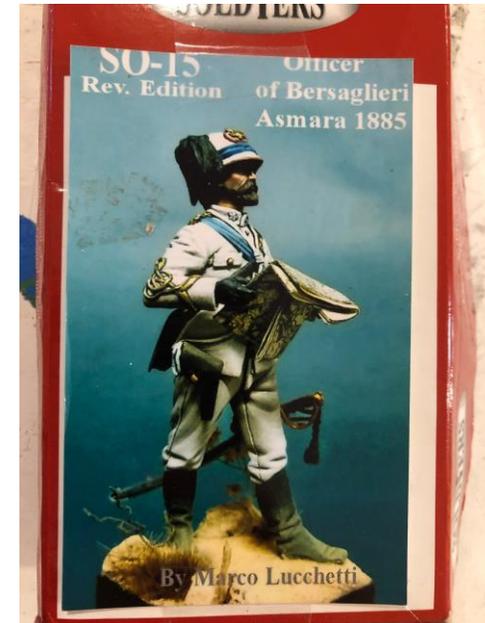

Gerry displayed his American Revolution chess set many years ago at one of our shows and brought it to the World Expo in Chicago in 2017. He decided it needed at least a bit more diversity so he swapped one figure for this one of a private, Rhode Island Light Infantry Company. The figure is mostly Airfix, with a Shenandoah head, scratch built cap, and an I/R musket.

Gerard Joria

Some other projects by Gerry, an Officer of the Bersaglieri, Asmara 1885, from Soldiers, and another one from 1870 by Pegaso.

Robert Huettner

Some figures Robert has done lately, APG's Rifleman 1777 and Romeo's Signifer.

Robert Huettner

Model Cellars ACW officer, soldier and drummer boy. Also, a photo from the Chattanooga show held last weekend. Bob garnered Best Figure for his entire display.
