“A 54mm figure I picked up in Paris a few years ago. It’s from an outfit in Madrid, Spain called “Miniaturas F. M. Beneito.” It depicts a member of the (then) famous 11th New York Infantry, aka "Ellsworth’s Fire Zouaves”, at the first Battle of Bull Run in 1861 in a pose fairly common for a lot of Federal soldiers that day.

Vitalstatistix

Private engraving and casting offered for personal painting and private collection, the flat is 1-11/16' high.

Vitalstatistix is the head of the small Breton village of the Gauls Asterix and Obelix. He is used to walking around the village on his shield by his shield bearers to manifest his position as an undisputed leader.

Another Tatar warrior 13th century
Edited by Golberg GO 1343, 30mm flat oil painted, second flat painted on its back side with colour variation.

Egyptian princess at the mirror.

Two 30mm engravings by Ludwig Frank No. '8', and 'Ae254' edited by Neckel.

Some minor differences between the two versions. This is an attempt to paint the skin of an Egyptian female of the Pharaoh court, between the black tone of a Nubian, and the dark brown of the Northern African skin

Elerinna, the healer elf. Bust of 85mm, scale 200mm , engraved by Andreas Trost, edited by Schmalkalder Zinnfiguren (DE)

"Elerinna is a young elf, just over 200 years old. Tall and slender, her blue eyes are like sapphires shining with a thousand lights, her golden hair cascading loosely. ... Her father and mother lived at the court of Eärwen Dame, daughter of Arwen and Aragorn, new King of Arnor and Gondor..."
From a rolegame character in the world of Minas Tirith , the fictional city in the Third Age of J.R.R. Tolkien's Middle-earth. It became the heavily fortified capital of Gondor in the second half of the Third Age. In the climax of The Lord of the Rings the city comes under a very large and determined attack by the allied forces of Mordor. Hair was painted with Titanium White, Naples Yellow clear, Naples Yellow, Raw Umber, Burned Umber

Assault at Hougoumont gate in Waterloo on 18th of June 1815

Edited by Glorious Empire, and engraved by Daniel Lepeltier, Oil painted, 54mm size. Lots of painting work on the bricks, they are typical in Belgium and the area where I lived earlier at 15 miles from Waterloo.

The flat is based on “Closing the Gates at Hougoumont”, painted by Robert Gibb (1845 – 1932) in 1903, The Coldstream Guards and the Scots Guards are shown forcing shut the gates of the chateau of Hougoumont against French attack. The moment of crisis shown in the painting came when around 30 French soldiers forced the north gate and entered into the chateau grounds. Before others could follow, the gates were forced shut again, and the French soldiers still inside were killed. The chateau of Hougoumont was a vital strategic point on the battlefield, positioned out in front of the right of the allied line. It was attacked throughout the day by thousands of French infantrymen, but held out to the end.

Prominent in the painting, forcing back the gate to the left, is Lieutenant-Colonel James MacDonell of Glengarry, the Coldstream Guards officer who was in overall command of the defence of Hougoumont. This son of a highland clan chief was celebrated for his part in the battle, and went on to a distinguished military career.
